In recent decades, it has become more and more popular, primarily due to its excellent natural beauty, with over 200 islands and islets and a large number of beaches and secluded resorts. It is an excellent place for surfing, but also for diving and fishing. The native population speaks English, but there are also a number of visitors from Europe who speak a wide variety of European languages. Only a very small minority of the island's population speaks native Carib, with most Carib speakers being in a small region of Venezuela, the extremely rich oil state of which Guayana Ereceda is a part. This ancient language and script shares a number of characteristics with the Mayan writing system, which became extinct around 500 years ago, but remains written today in the indigenous variety of the Western 1cb139a0ed
